As one of the largest and most influential gatherings of world leaders, the decisions made at the G20 Summit have a significant impact on the global community. As academicians, we have responsibility for collaborating to find solutions for the pressing issues facing our world today.

At Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University we organize activities and events related to the G20, which can provide opportunities for students and academics to engage with the topics and themes being discussed.

This month we have organized seminars and workshops on economic growth, trade, climate change, and global governance. These events brought together experts, policymakers, and students to exchange ideas and perspectives.

We are also trying to encourage research and policy analysis on the topics being discussed at various G20 forums. This involves analyzing the economic impacts of G20 policies, evaluating the effectiveness of climate change initiatives, examining the human rights implications of global governance.

We had a series of public lectures and debates featuring prominent experts and policymakers on G20-related issues. These events help to raise awareness and engage the broader community in discussions around global economic and political challenges.

While organizing these activities we see palpable enthusiasm and thus a hope that the G20 Summit will result in concrete actions and commitments that will lead to a brighter future for all. Let us work together to build a more just, peaceful, and sustainable world

Hon'ble Vice Chancellor, GGSIPU
PadmaShri Prof. Mahesh Verma

The International Women's Day, has just passed by, I want to take a moment here to celebrate and honour the incredible contributions and achievements made by women around the world. Their resilience, strength, and determination continues to inspire us all. Women have overcome many barriers and challenges throughout history to make progress and achieve success in different areas, such as science, technology, politics, education, and the arts. Their efforts and contributions have paved the way for future generations, and it is important to recognise and appreciate their hard work and dedication.

However, it is equally as important to note that women have often been marginalised and excluded from positions of power and influence. Many have had to overcome significant barriers and discrimination to achieve their goals. It is essential to continue working towards gender equality and ensuring that women have equal opportunities to succeed.

As the Vice Chancellor of this institution, I am committed to creating an environment where women can thrive and reach their full potential. I recognise the unique challenges that women face in their academic and professional lives, and I am dedicated to breaking down barriers and promoting gender equality.

One of the key factors for effective narrowing of the gender pay gap is an enabling environment for women employees is a workplace. A culture, that fosters gender equity, diversity, and inclusion. It is a supportive workplace that enables women to advance in their careers and fully contribute to the organisation. This support comes in many ways such as an inclusive maternal leave policy, active engagement at senior levels of decision making, accommodative leave structures and so on. However I have always believed that if we are to truly help a marginalised group, we can not impose our sensibilities on to them. We have to engage in through and comprehensive dialogue to understand their needs first hand and then implement changes. Hence I have always focused on nurturing an inclusive work culture and camaraderie in the work space, to allow for the fostering of open communication, collaboration, and respect for diversity.

We have ensured to implement gender-sensitive policies that are fair and unbiased towards women and our non-binary employees. There is continuous sensitisation on diversity and inclusion. This is done to insure our workplace culture is respectful and supportive.

However we at GGIPU believe in going above and beyond in our commitment to cultivate long lasting change. Therefore, we are currently in talks regarding the creation of mentorship and sponsorship programs which aim to provide guidance and support from senior leaders within the organisation to employees of all levels. We hope to leverage the knowledge and skills of our senior leaders to impart the same to their future mentees. This would also create a clear and firm two way communication channel from the mentees to the senior leaders to allow for synchronisation of goals and challenge solving across the organisation.

Recognising that work is a part life but not ones whole life we have taken further care to provide a nurturing environment for our future generation via access to a Day Care Center, where children can have home away from home.

I am proud to put this on record that, at our university women lead from front with the ratio of women participation in the teaching posts being 23 percent and yet more than 50 percent leadership positions held by women.

To "The Other Half that holds the Sky!" I want you to know that your voices are heard, your efforts are appreciated, and your successes are celebrated. Together, we can build a better future for all.

It is useful to recall the origins amidst the crisis of the G 20. The roots of this grouping can be traced back to meetings of Finance Ministers and Central bank Governors from 1988-89 of the 20 largest economies and the immediate context was the realisation that these powerful economies needed to work together to address the Asian Financial Crisis. This idea of the grouping of major economies was however a durable one.

The grouping of finance ministers and central bank governors was known as the D20 at the time, and it lasted about a decade. In 2001, India presided over the D20 meeting in New Delhi. However, at the next major crisis – the global financial crisis– in 2008 and 2009, caused many people in various parts of the world to conclude, more or less simultaneously, that a meeting of finance ministers is insufficient, that this grouping needed to address issues raised by the Global Financial Crisis at the head of government or head of the state level. The current idea of the G20 was thus born in 2008. Its ‘crisis origins’ or crisis context is useful to keep in mind.

India has been a member of the G20 and, previously of the D20 since their inception. After the formation of the G 20 in 2008, its first meeting was held in the United States. It has a rotating system for its Presidency. One of the countries in this group becomes the chair for the year. As you are aware we are, because of this rotational principle, the President of the G 20 this year. The G20 however has no permanent structure. It does not have a secretariat as the UN does. It is nevertheless a confederation of the world's major economies and thus a valuable platform.

So, what is the significance of the forthcoming G 20 summit for India? There are several reasons why this is of significance. It is evidently important because it is a great honour for us to lead this process for a year, with the participation of the leaders of twenty important countries. But there is an added significance because of a specific context: there is a growing concern in the world today than the world's principal international organisations, which is the UN on the political side and the IMF and the WTO on the financial and trade side are not pulling their weight in terms of the major global challenges that exist, whether it is climate change, the debt crisis, the global economy as a whole, or the future of globalisation.

And the impression is that these major international organisations are not sufficiently representative of global complexities as they exist today or more simply that many issues of global concern are being insufficiently addressed. India as the current chair has thus an opportunity to try and redress this imbalance. In brief the opportunity to inscribe concerns of developing countries or the global south more prominently on the world's governance agenda.

The summit in India is also important because, if we see it as a part of a continuum, a pattern emerges. Indonesia was the previous chair. India is current chair. Brazil will be the next chair, and South Africa will follow. So, for the next four years, we will have the G 20 Presidency coming from the developing world or the Global South. Clearly then there is an opportunity for the developing world to make its voice heard in this international grouping with greater conviction and clarity. As we have read in the news, India recently organised the Global South Deliberation.

We can also situate the current context of the G 20 as being in the midst of a number of longer and medium term crisis situations and trends. What are the dimensions of the different crises? The first is the uneven and hesitant pace of recovery from the pandemic, as well as the impact of the pandemic on global supply chains. So the COVID or post Covid scenario is one dimension. The second is of a global economic contraction caused by the pandemic in part but to an extent can be related to an older pre pandemic trend. The third dimension is that of the climate crisis, and there are many aspects to the climate crisis that can be discussed. Alongside these there are major political challenges. The first and most evident is the conflict in Ukraine and secondly there is the question of China's rise and assertion and the issues this raises for other countries.

What are the main agenda items that India will advocate at this summit? The G20 has a very broad agenda. There will be approximately 250 meetings, some of which have already begun taking place. There are broadly four or five central points that India will be pushing. To an extent, these issues are also carryovers from previous summits, but possibly the Indian Presidency will give them an extra impetus. The most important of these will be to ensure that recovery from the pandemic is both quick and broad-based. This is obviously a central question that we face today in India, as well as in many other developing countries and developed ones.

Second, how do we deal with the problem of the global recession which is rapidly approaching? How do we boost growth? Again, this is a critical issue for us, both domestically and in our external approaches and policy.

The third issue, which has recently gained additional prominence, is debt. We have three very dramatic examples in our immediate neighbourhood of a debt situation that spiralled out of the control of the concerned government. We witnessed what occurred in Sri Lanka a few months ago. We can see what's going on today in Pakistan; and Bangladesh could well also be facing difficulty.. As a result, the debt issue has taken on a much larger role than it previously had.

Aside from these economic issues, there are also major political challenges. The first and most obviously is the war in Europe. Then there is the question of China's emergence as a major power. A new global power emerges once every 50-60 years. As a result of this process existing arrangements and architectures are confronted by the need to change and consequently the global political situation becomes unstable. So, how should we address the China issue? We can't obviously ignore it or take a rigidly confrontational stance towards it, as some countries would like to. In India we cannot simplistically classify China as a threat alone because it is also an opportunity. In brief, the Chinese economy is a great opportunity for many countries, including India, but other aspects of China's growth are politically destabilising.

What about the narratives that surround the G20 Summit in India and our Presidency. Some believe that we are 'talking up' our Presidency excessively and the hype is now clouding reality. This view must be balanced by the consideration that this is that this is an important multilateral meeting quite regardless of where it is held simply because it is an platform for some of the most important world leaders to get together. As the host country we are provided with a platform for us to showcase ourselves and to push ideas of concern to us on to the global priority list. This type of opportunity only comes around once in a decade or two. So, if you have the opportunity we must take advantage of it.

At the same time, we must be cognizant of the limitations of multilateralism. When we look at our neighbours to the east and west, we easily observe two nations where multilateralism has been of limited utility, whether in the form of UN initiatives or other regional endeavours. One example is provided by Afghanistan. It is well known where the country is and how it is regressing socially, but the rest of the world can only watch. We may impose sanctions and place restrictions on it but these may not have much effect. The second example is Myanmar, where massive international sanctions have been imposed but again has made no real difference to the internal direction of change in that country. So, we must keep in mind that multilateralism has its limitations and we must be cautious about having excessively high expectations of what can emerge from this G 20 Summit.

One of the main challenges India faces in hosting this summit is the current state of relationships between the major powers: the United States and the European Union on the one side and Russia on another. China poses a similar set of issues given the continuing momentum that the US China rivalry is gathering. This makes the goal of finding common ground on an agenda that benefits developing countries like India that much more difficult. This will be the diplomatic challenge that we will face as the Summit draws closer and the success of this summit will depend on whether or not we can find a way to bring these major players together on key issues.

LEADERSHIP

Leadership is the process of influencing others towards the accomplishment of goals. It is the ability to induce subordinates to work with zeal and confidence. In short, it is the activity of influencing people to strive willingly for group objectives. For every company or organization, good leadership is a prerequisite to be successful and good leaders are vital for effective management practices.

Traditional theories of Leadership

In 1930s Psychologist Kurt Lewin and his fellow researchers identified three different school of thoughts of leadership styles known as traditional theories. There are various approaches and styles, a leader may follow in managing a team, making plans and decisions, implementing and evaluating those plans, providing direction and motivating team members to pursue goals.

1. Directive or autocratic style: As per this approach, a leader makes most decisions without consulting other group members. He controls group members by using rewards and discipline, and permits very little individual freedom of action. Group members are dependent on the leader to establish goals and plan activities.
2. Participative or democratic style: Leaders following this style, involve individuals in decision making and goal setting. They delegate authority and responsibility to group members. These leaders use two-way communication and are considerate about the attitudes and feelings of team members.
3. Free rein or laissez- faire style: In this leadership style, members are permitted to function essentially on their own. Communication is open, and can take any direction. While this style can be effective in situations where group members are highly qualified in an area of expertise, it often leads to poorly defined roles and a lack of motivation.

Modern theories of leadership

During the past 100 years, as interest in the psychology of leadership has grown, a variety of leadership theories have been developed to explain why and how specific individuals become outstanding leaders. Early theories of leadership emphasised the characteristics that set leaders apart from followers, but later modern theories examined additional elements like situational considerations and skill levels.

Transactional and Transformational leadership are classified under the modern leadership theory and are considered relevant for the modern workplace.

1. Transactional Leadership: Transactional leadership is a leadership approach which uses rewards and penalties to control and inspire subordinates. Max Weber, a sociologist, first introduced this leadership theory and Bernard M. Bass expanded on it in the early 1980s. This method of leadership places a strong emphasis on structure, organisation, supervision, performance, and results. The group's objectives and tasks are quite regimented, and members receive praise when they succeed in achieving them and criticism when they miss deadlines. Rewards and penalties under transactional leadership are hence based on the performance of the followers. The leader sees the connection between managers and employees as a trade. When employees perform well, they are rewarded. They will receive some sort of punishment if they perform poorly.

2. Transformational Leadership: James MacGregor Burns, a presidential biographer and leadership expert, is credited with first introducing the idea of transformative leadership. Transformational leadership is when "leaders and followers make each other move to a greater degree of moral and motivation." Transformational leaders offer a purpose that transcends short-term goals and focuses on higher-order intrinsic needs. A transformational leader has four components; Charisma, Inspiration(motivation), intellectual stimulation and individualized attention. This kind of leader tends to lead effective and devoted teams. They devote a lot of time and effort to the team and genuinely care about the team's success. Due to the high level of devotion that transformative leaders may engender in their followers, turnover tends to be quite low.

Situational/ contingency Leadership style

Since all leadership theories cannot be applied universally in every organization's setting, situational or contingency theory of leadership has served as a better solution. This theory states that, leadership is greatly affected by the situation around and the leader is required to behave and act accordingly at given point of time. Therefore, the theory denies any hard and fast rules for the leaders in order to be effective. The emphasis of situational leadership is not on leadership traits and personalities rather its upon the particular situation in which a leader operates. As per the theory, a good leader is one who knows how to react in a situation in the best possible manner. Fiedler suggested that three major situational variables determine whether a given situation is favorable to leaders:

- (i) their personal relations with the members of their group (leader-member relations)
- (ii) the degree of structure in the task that their group has been assigned to perform (task structure) and
- (iii) the power and authority that their position provides (position power).

There can be several factors which affects these situations and leader's action to it, for instance, subordinate's personality, leader's personality, task requirements, organizational demands, team opinion, values and beliefs etc. There are several examples of renowned brands in which the failure of a leader in assessing a situation has resulted in the downfall. For instance, Moser Baer, Kodak, Nokia etc. Therefore, it is important for leaders especially in the current dynamic environment to critically assess the demand of the situation and act likewise. This can be done if leaders are well aware with the change management concept and its fair application in organizational settings.

Change Management

Change management is a collective term for all approaches to prepare, support, and help individuals, teams, and organizations in making organizational change.

It includes methods that redirect or redefine the use of resources, business process, budget allocations, or other modes of operation that significantly change a company or organization.

Kurt Lewin's Change Management Model

Kurt Lewin's change management model is a three-step process that involves unfreezing, changing, and refreezing. The unfreezing stage involves creating motivation for change by breaking down the status quo. This is followed by the changing stage where new ideas and practices are introduced. Finally, the refreezing stage involves making the new practices a permanent part of the organization's culture. The model is widely used for implementing change in various settings.

Leadership Role in 21st Century

The 21st-century is characterized by constant disruption. Business markets are volatile. The end customer's behavior is uncertain. Even before the pandemic, Gartner Analyst Mark P McDonald noted that 21st-century leaders must be artists; they must have an ability to adapt rapidly in a world of work where a talent to 'relate, create, and instigate change' defines overall success. 21st-century leadership is therefore rooted in the ability to:

- Relate: Leaders need to make a shift from production-based management to people-centric management, relating with teams to better drive performance.
- Create: Leaders need to create new ways of working and introduce new processes that redefine standards and generate strategies that work today.
- Instigate Change: Leaders need to be at the forefront of change, actively introducing and using new processes and motivating teams to accept change.

In the face of multiple emerging leadership and management challenges, agility is the cornerstone of 21st-century leadership. In short, being flexible, open to change, and reactive.

Lord and Leader: Ganesha

The name “Ganesha” is a combination of two Sanskrit words; “Gana”, meaning a group, and “Isha”, meaning the master or leader. Ganesha is considered as an obstacle remover and the one who shows the right path. There is a lot we can learn from Ganesha as a leader. I have attempted to derive the leadership qualities in reference to the appearance of Lord Ganesha.

Leader should be visionary: Lord Gajanan's big head depicts thinking big and one should have an intellectual mind filled with information, knowledge, wisdom, and vision.

Leader should be Good Listener: His big ears instruct us to listen attentively to new ideas and suggestions.

Leader should be focused: Narrow eyes of Lord Ganesha reveal that leader or manager needs to be focused on goals.

Leader should speak less: Lord Vighnaharta's small mouth represents “Speak Less and Listen More while communicating with others. Leaders often get the best results when they stop talking and start listening.

Humility in Leadership: The mouse is the tiniest creature and is used as a vehicle by Lord Ganesha. It indicates that a small thing can be very useful and advantageous for us. Leaders who are humble have a better grasp on organizational needs and make better-informed decisions about task performance.

Leaders should have Self-Awareness: Lord Ganesh was aware of his own competency and his Mushak, mouse. The better you understand yourself and recognize your own strengths and weaknesses, the more effective you can be as a leader.

Leadership requires Sacrifice: Broken Tusk of Lord Ganesha symbolizes the power of sacrifice.

Leadership with Alertness: As the vehicle of Lord Ganesha, a rat teaches us to remain always on alert and illuminate our inner self with the light of knowledge.

Europe G20 Day

Sh. Manoj Kumar, motivated students to take advantage of India's G20 presidency for widening their horizons. Sh. Manoj Kumar said that "G20 presidency has come at the right time. Today, we're at the cusp of things because of our young population. India has youngsters who are tech-savvy and competitive. He further narrated stories of his own school times to give a glimpse of availability of limited resources and yet high spirit of students and respect for teachers to learn and grow in life. He further guided students that they are blessed to have ocean of opportunities and they should make the best of it for their own growth and nation's development.

Mr. Sanjeev Roy enlightened the participants on the formation of EU, India and EU summits, and the collaboration of the two. Also, after briefing the students about current scenario in Europe, he emphasized on ERASMUS scholarships available to Indian students. He focussed on the two key points of higher education: Quality and Lifelong Learning. He shared how India's education system is one of the best in the world but requires a few tweaks to inculcate lifelong learning. Then he talked about the GAFAM moment which stands for Google, Apple, Facebook, Amazon, and Microsoft. Why India couldn't have its own GAFAM moment? He further motivated students to find best learning opportunities and create such moment in our own country. Mr. Roy clarified plethora of doubts coming from students and guided them to take right steps at right time.

Knowing Europe: Renaissance & Enlightenment to Contemporary Trends & Challenges

Session on – The European Union as a Unique Actor in International Relations

The Directorate of International Affairs of Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University organized online sessions on the theme "European Union Structures and Functioning" and "The European Union as a Unique Actor in International Relations" as a part of the G20 activities. The online session is a segment of the certificate course series, "Knowing Europe: Renaissance & Enlightenment to Contemporary Trends and Challenges". The coordinators of this course are Prof. Vijita Aggarwal (Director, International Affairs, GGSIPU) and Dr. Sheetal Sharma (Centre for European Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University) & the Convener is Dr. Anjali Shokeen (Associate Director, International Affairs, GGSIPU). Dr. Anjali Shokeen invited and welcomed the resource person Prof. Srikanth Kondapalli for the session. Prof. Srikanth Kondapalli gave the introduction about China being the 2nd largest emitter of sulphur oxide and carbon dioxide, the connection started between the two countries when European Union asked China to open their markets for trade. Both countries are closely knitted with each other via trade, investments, technology, arms and weapons etc. the difference explained by Prof. Kondapalli between the two countries is mainly concerned with the human rights, as China is seen to violate several human rights which is one of the main concerns for European Union. All the technological advancements which United Kingdom was using are developed in China as now China is providing advanced technology to Europe. The benefits are always two ways but as China were restrictive in opening their markets means that European Union is unable to access China's resources but at the same time China can benefit from their as they have a liberal and free market. The session was filled with detailed information about the two countries and it was an interactive and well – informed session. All the participants appreciated the session.

Dr. Anjali Shokeen invited and welcomed the resource person Mr. Manjeev Singh Puri. The session started with a brief idea about European Union and how Europe plays a big role in the world and can now be compared to the United States of America. The session started with the roles and establishments of European Union and later it is related with India and how their relations have bonded. There are other countries in the world that are more powerful than Europe but it still holds some power in various affairs like density of petrol, alphonso mango which is exported from India. Even India has adopted many standards from United Kingdom and India also have a very special relation with Europe as we are in continuous trade with European countries in almost all fields be it medicine, automobile, food and beverages. United Kingdom understands China creating a hegemony and thus UK's interest in investing in India to balance it out or about a deal that UK and India want to expedite on trade and investment on comparatively free trade. The session ended with sir explaining that India will be third largest economy by 2030 and if so, then how the lives will be affected when India becomes a powerful economy and it will be very crucial years for us to experience. The session was filled with detailed information about the two countries and it was an interactive and well – informed session. All the participants appreciated the session. Lastly the session was ended with a question answer session followed by a vote of thanks.

Special lecture by the Director of International affairs, Prof. Vijita Singh Aggarwal on Role of Non State Actors in International Relations

Directorate of International Affairs (DIA), GGSIPU, organized a special lecture by the Director of International affairs, Prof. Vijita Singh Aggarwal on Role of Non state actors in International Relations and Politics as a part of the G20 activity. This interactive session was held on 18th March 2023 in the GGSIPU. In the lecture on the role of non-state actors in international relations, Professor Vijita Singh Aggarwal highlighted the increasing importance of non-state actors in shaping global politics. She noted that these actors, including multinational corporations, NGOs, international organizations, and social movements, have significant influence on global governance, often playing a role in setting the political agenda, shaping policies, and mobilizing public opinion. She also emphasized that the rise of non-state actors has challenged the traditional understanding of international relations, which has been focused on the interactions between states. She argued that in today's globalized world, non-state actors have become key players in shaping international relations, both in terms of economic power and political influence.

Furthermore, the professor discussed the diverse roles that non-state actors play in global politics, including advocating for human rights and social justice, promoting environmental protection, and engaging in peacebuilding and conflict resolution efforts. She emphasized the importance of recognizing the power dynamics that exist between non-state actors and states, and the need for greater accountability and transparency in the actions of these actors.

Overall, the lecture highlighted the increasingly important role of non-state actors in shaping international relations, and the need for policymakers and scholars to take their influence into account when analyzing and responding to global issues.

ANUGOONJ'23- THE ANNUAL CULTURAL FEST OF GGSIPU

After a long wait of three years, the biggest cultural extravaganza of Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, “Anugoonj”, finally culminated into a three day event, from 02 March to 04 March, 2023. Filled with power packed performances of a stellar celebrity line up, and the enthusiastic participation of the student body in a number of competitions, this twenty second edition of Anugoonj received a historic footfall of more than eighty thousand students, who thronged the Main Campus, Dwarka, to make the best of these three days. GGSIPU’s silver jubilee, and India’s Presidency of the coveted G20 forum made this celebration of life even more special. GGSIPU has been actively collaborating with delegates of all G20 nations to conduct workshops and activities for the staff and the students, in its bid to foster an environment of dialogue and better understand the culture of all partner nations. Anugoonj’2 provided a unique insight into the enriching University life enjoyed by students from India and abroad at GGSIPU, and also beautifully showcased India’s rich cultural heritage and diversity. Organised under the aegis of Directorate of Student Welfare, Anugoonj’23 proved to be a great success, and a memorable milestone in India’s Presidential journey of the G20 forum. Here’s a glimpse of some of the competitions organised during Anugoonj’23. Keeping in mind the nature and character of the Indian Presidency, all endeavours were made to ensure that the events organised were inclusive and promote the universal sense of oneness, as envisaged by our Hon'ble Prime Minister Sh. Narendra Modi.

INAUGURATION CEREMONY

The inauguration of Anugoonj 2023 was a grand affair, fit for its reputation and scale. The celebration began with the traditional lamp lighting ceremony, which was followed by a welcome address from the festival organisers. The three-day festival showcased a diverse range of cultures, which was evident in the opening ceremony itself.

A notable figure is often invited to serve as the Chief Guest and address the exuberant crowd. They are often invited because of their achievements and cultural contributions to their respective fields. This year’s chief guest was Padma Shri recipient Mr. Madhur Bhandarkar. He is an Indian film director, script writer, and producer who has many feathers to his cap. He congratulated the GGSIPU fraternity, and delivered an inspiring speech for the students, where he laid stress on the values of cultural diversity and acceptance. Mr. Bhandarkar, along with the Hon'ble Vice Chancellor of GGSIPU, Padma Shri Prof. (Dr.) Mahesh Verma inaugurated the official newsletter of Anugoonj’23- ‘Vibes’, which is prepared by the Publication Club, USS and widely distributed throughout Anugoonj. The event featured an exhibition of beautiful and intricate handicrafts from many regions, along with performances by Indian folk artists. Their spectacular performances kept the audience enthralled, and provided a royal welcome to all the guests.

CELEBRITY PERFORMANCES

Anugoonj'23 witnessed a stellar celebrity line up, where three famous artists performed on each of the evenings. The artists were invited by the Directorate of Student Welfare, in consultation with the elected officials of the Student Council. All performances saw a massive footfall, and were thoroughly enjoyed by all attendees.

Day 1- Punjabi Night with Sukh E

Punjabi Pop sensation Sukh E performed on the opening night of the fest. A huge crowd awaited him, and cheered as he performed one chartbuster after the other. The audience could not help but tap their feet to his groovy numbers, from Jaguar to Coka 2.0. Sukh E's energetic performance set the mood for the coming two days and kick started Anugoonj' 2023.

Day 2- EDM Night with DJ Ravator

One of the youngest DJs and record producers' in the country, DJ Ravator, performed on the second day of Anugoonj'23, and ushered in the EDM night.

The whole campus reverberated to his tunes, as the audience could not stop dancing to his peppy beats. DJ Ravator charted out one hit song after the other, with his special touch, and also paid rich tributes to deceased pop artists through his performance. The grand audio and visual system set up on the main stage took his performance to the next level, making it a fully immersive experience. The lights, the music and the vibe of the evening was unmatched, and will surely be a cherished memory.

STREET PLAY

Street Play is a unique form of theatre, where the actors perform in public places, treating the entire world as their audience and stage. Incorporating elements of other artforms, such as dance and music, street plays are performed with the objective of creating social awareness in a manner which resonates with the masses. This event was organised in front of the University Information and Resource Centre, and acted as a magnet for the crowd. The various plays encapsulated many challenges faced by us as a society, such as homelessness, media propaganda, taboo around menstruation, etc, and some also provided novel solutions for the same. With their catchy dialogues, witty statements, attractive slogans and powerful dramatic elements like tragedy, humour, mimicry etc. all the performers from different colleges brought in their A-game to the competition. MAIMS college was adjudged as the winner and BPIT college bagged the second position.

DEBATE

Debating is a powerful skill which involves the expression of one's ideas in a clear, lucid and effective manner. The objective of every debate is to convince one's opponent and the audience, as to why a particular stance is the right one. Day 1 of Anugoonj 2023 commenced with the English Debate competition, which was conducted in the CBlock Auditorium. In this battle of wits, the participants confidently presented their views on the topic "Is opening of campuses by Foreign Universities in India a boon for the country?" The judges and the audiences seemed seemingly engaged in this fiery exchange of words. Nainika Singh and Sidharth Abhishek from JIMS finished second, and Devesh Anand and Devangi Bedi from ADGITM, Delhi were adjudged as the winner.

WESTERN VOCAL SOLO COMPETITION

COLLAGE MAKING COMPETITION

Nita Leland once said, "Collage is like a hall of mirrors. Every direction you look, you see something different and visually stimulating." The collage making competition added true colours to the second day of Anugoonj. It was an exciting event that was organized at the library courtyard. Participants had come to showcase their creativity and artistry in the form of beautiful collages. It began in the afternoon, with participants arriving at the venue with their art supplies and a vision in their minds. Each participant was given a canvas paper to create their collage and they were free to use any materials they wished for, including photographs, magazine cutouts, colored paper, and markers. As the day progressed, the library courtyard was abuzz with creativity. Participants could be seen cutting and pasting, experimenting with colors and textures, and bringing their ideas to life. Some opted for bold and vibrant collages, while others chose to go for a more subdued and minimalist look. The judges for the competition were renowned artists and designers from the community, who evaluated the collages based on their originality, creativity, and overall aesthetic appeal. As they moved forward from one entry to another, they took their time to examine each piece carefully, appreciating the effort and thought that had gone into its creation. As the competition drew to a close, the participants gathered around eagerly, waiting for the results to be announced. The judges took over the stage and praised all the participants after they declared Rishabh Khurana from DBTS Okhla as the winner and Anshita Arya from GTBIT as the runner up.

BATTLE OF BANDS

Music is the literature of the heart. Day 2 of GGSIPU's Annual Cultural Fest started with a bang. The top bands from all colleges affiliated to IPU showcased their unmatched talent. From medleys to fusions, every unique combination of vocalists and instrumentalists mesmerised us all with their enthusiastic combinations of western, eastern and classical music. Daniel Dass from Fairfield Institute of Management and Technology termed the competition as the "highlight of their year-long hardwork and passion". The competition was judged by Mr. Bhola Ram Kothari, Mr. Naitik Asari and Dr. Sayan Chatterjee. The band of USS bagged the first position.

Sports Competitions for Women

We at Gender Champions Club are a network of students from different streams of studies promoting equality for all genders. Gender equality is a fundamental human right and that right is violated by gender-based discrimination. Therefore, our club aims at providing equal rights, responsibilities, and opportunities to people irrespective of their gender. Therefore on the occasion of International Women's Day, a sports competition was organized within the campus to celebrate the women of our institution.

Firstly all the participants were made aware of the motivation behind this sports event. This was followed by a briefing about the rules and regulations of the games. Along with this major stress was laid on the importance of healthy competition. Students from various University Schools joined the event to make it a success. This list included of University School of Education, University School of Chemical Technology, University School of Bio-Technology, University School of Humanities and Social Sciences, etc.

GCC organized a throwball and table tennis competition on the occasion of International Women's Day. Following were the details regarding the same.

WORLD TUBERCULOSIS DAY

As part of the Silver Jubilee activities of GGSIPU and India assuming G20 Presidency from 01- 12-2022 with the theme “VasudhaivaKutumbakam” or “One Earth. One Family. One Future.” Dharohar, The Heritage Club of GGSIPU under the aegis of Directorate of Student’s Welfare (DSW) organized a “World Tuberculosis Day Seminar” in collaboration with The International Union against Tuberculosis and Lung Diseases (The Union) on 22nd March, 2023. Established in 1920, The Union is committed to create a better and healthier world for all, especially free of tuberculosis and lung diseases.

The speakers and the esteemed guest at the seminar were Mr.Mohd. Shadab, Sr. Manager, iDEFEAT TB Project, The Union and Ms. Tripti Agarwal, Technical Advisor, Corporate Partnerships, The Union. The seminar was really interactive and students were educated about the deadly disease in the most effective and fun way. The speakers enjoyed interacting with the students. Students enthusiastically participated in the discussion and showed inclination to gather information about tuberculosis and how to prevent the spread of the disease.

Event Organised by Directorate of Student Welfare

WORLD TUBERCULOSIS DAY

The guests also judged the Jingle Competition in which students from various colleges and schools participated. Jingles are short, catchy tunes with memorable lyrics that can stick in people's heads. By creating jingles about tuberculosis, participants made it easier for students to remember important information about the disease. Participants were very creative in coming up with captivating jingles and the audience enjoyed the jingle competition thoroughly. Even the judges were pleased with the performances put forward by the participants. The winners were awarded with a Certificate of Appreciation and vouchers worth Rs. 1500, Rs. 1000 and Rs. 750 by the judges.

Dharohar also organized an Online Essay Competition. An essay competition was an effective way to raise awareness about World Tuberculosis Day as they provide in-depth information. Participants developed their critical thinking and research skills. The winners gave a brief description of their essays to the audience. By providing a platform for people to share their knowledge and ideas, we helped advance the fight against tuberculosis and reduce the burden of the disease. The winners were awarded with a Certificate of Appreciation and books worth Rs. 1000, Rs. 750 and Rs. 500 of their choice.

The event was a great success and the true spirit of the UN-designated theme for World Tuberculosis Day, 2023 that is “Yes! We can stop TB” was manifested to reality during the event by the speakers and the students alike.

Annual Lecture Under the series-"Rah Ro" By Inez Baranay

The University School of Humanities and Social Sciences (USHSS) of Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University (GGSIPU) organised an Annual Lecture under the series "Rah Ro" on the 17th of March, 2023 in room 505, C Block. The lecture was attended by the faculty, students and research scholars of the School. This lecture, delivered by Inez Baranay, an Australian fiction/non-fiction writer, was a part of the year-long celebration of the University's completion of 25 years of its existence as well as a part of the plethora of activities to acknowledge the year of India's G20 presidency. The Hon'ble Vice Chancellor Padma Shri Prof. (Dr.) Mahesh Verma was the Patron of the event and Prof. Vivek Sachdeva, Dean, USHSS was its convenor.

The event started with an official address and introduction to the speaker. Dr. Inez Baranay. In his address, Prof. Sachdeva talked about the idea behind naming the lecture series "Rah Ro". He informed that the word is borrowed from the poetry of Faiz Ahmad Faiz and stands for a traveller. Introducing Inez, he told that she was born in Naples, Italy and was immigrated to Australia when she was an infant. She has a Ph.D. in Creative Writing from Griffith University, Australia. Baranay began her writing career with Between Careers, published in 1992 after which she has continued to write novels, the latest being Turn Left at Venus (2019). Her journey as a traveller began with her first trip to Bali in the 1970s, after which she explored several countries of the world with India being one of the destinations that shaped her journey.

Prof. Sachdeva emphasised the fact that Baranay's journey as a travel writer transformed boundaries and expressed the situation of the times. He further talked about how the idea of identity and self has considerably changed with time, especially when the world is now perceived in the timeframes of pre-covid and post-covid times. Prof. Sachdeva also highlighted Baranay's diverse transnational background as a migrant who has experienced different regions and cultures during her lifetime. He then invited Baranay to deliver her lecture.

Event Organised by University School of Humanities & Social Sciences

Annual Lecture Under the series-"Rah Ro" By Inez Baranay

Dr Baranay started the lecture with an emphasis on her diverse background and upbringing. She then talked about the idea of digital nomads and how in these times people have been connected to the world while staying in a particular place. Baranay believed that a community of values is not marked by geography. She reflected on her identity as an Australian writer by which she is normally addressed, however, she observed that she would rather describe herself as an "English language writer". She explained that her identity as an "English language writer" does not limit her as "English has no nationality". Baranay continued to talk about how identity was fluid and how it changed with context and space.

The second part of her lecture focused on how the idea of India changed for her throughout these years. Baranay believed that her idea of India changed with her readings, writings and experiences here and that India as a country should rather be experienced than understood. She mentioned that her first visit to India was in 1980 and narrated how, as an initial traveller to India, she would only interact with foreign tourists and local service-givers. With time, her interest in the country led her to read works on its history and culture, two of which she highlighted were Ramachandra Guha's Rebels of the Raj and Shashi Tharoor's Inglorious Empire. She expressed how travelling helped her to absorb and experience the country in her own ways and created a new sense of self. Her second visit to India was in 1986, when she got acquainted with B.K.S. Iyengar, her Yoga guru, at the Iyengar Yoga Institute in Pune. Baranay talked about her travel to different parts of India and her experiences from staying in a houseboat in Kashmir and interacting with Tibetan refugees in Ladakh to visiting remote villages in Pune, and how these travels further modified/expanded her view of India.

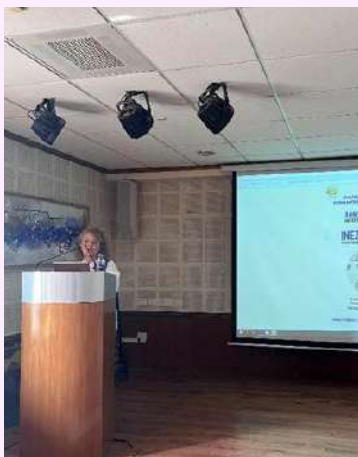

Baranay further talked about the changing times in 1990s where India saw the surge of liberal economic policies. She referred to her novel Neem Dreams where the leading character is an Indian, named Meenakshi, and how through the novel she dismissed the cliched views on India. Inez further talked about her recent visit to India, where she is on a journey to explore more about the life of Halide Edib Adivar, who was a Turkish novelist, teacher, and feminist intellectual. She came across the works and ideas of Edib during her stay in Turkey in the 1990s. Baranay concluded the lecture by talking about the ideas of nation and nationhood and still contemplating on the question, "How does India change you?"

Annual Lecture Under the series-"Rah Ro" By Inez Baranay

Baranay's lecture was followed by several intriguing questions and discussions from the audience. Prof. Ashutosh Mohan highlighted the importance of works written in regional languages and how these works could be significant in creating and moulding the idea of India. Prof. Vivek Sachdeva further discussed with the speaker about the changing form of the novel, especially from around the 1990s to the contemporary times. The challenges of publication and marketing of a written work were also discussed. Baranay maintained that the risk and insecurity of being published never held her back. She encouraged young writers to write without any inhibitions.

The Annual Lecture ended with the Dean's address and an official vote of thanks by Prof. Ashutosh Mohan.\

The audience comprised of students of architecture from USAP and affiliated institutes as well as faculty and architects.

Prof. (Dr.) Neeraja L. Sethi, Dean USAP kickstarted the event by presenting a welcome address which aptly set the background for the day. Through her inspiring and thought-provoking insights, she set the tone for the speakers of the day.

Prof. Ar. Charanjit Singh Shah shared his experiences through his 50 yrs long architectural practice with the audience. He described architecture as an interface between various disciplines like design, technology, materials, and engineering. He explained the significance of holistic nature of architecture and how the multidisciplinary forms of engineering needed to be incorporated in it. He also talked about the simplistic dynamism that is the significance of creating design according to the eye level and how it can evolve through the understanding of the stakeholder. He explained the sensitization of built form and respecting nature through sustainable design.

Shri Sarvagya Kumar Srivastava shared his experiences of working for numerous government projects with the audience. He reiterated the importance of architects in bringing not only a design and creative sensibility to a project but also the holistic vision that is critical for any project to be successful. He emphasized that design and architecture have the power to make peoples’ lives easier and happier. He also gave insights into dispute resolution committee and the responsibilities of an arbitrator.

Ar. Sumant Sharma traced the origins of the architects’ Act of 1972 and explained about the project management consultancy, conduct guidelines, 1989 and the role and responsibilities of Indian Institute of Architects in COA.

Ar. Anmol Arora explained the various stages of handling a design project and how to market those using social media to create a good portfolio of works. He shared the innovative office structure and practices that their firm adopts to create teamwork and strong work ethics.

Panel Discussion on “ChatGPT in Media and Communication Industry: Challenges and Opportunities”

In a few months, virtual assistant ChatGPT has seen early adopters across media and communication industries. University School of Mass Communication (USMC), GGSIPU took the lead to open conversation on generative AI like ChatGPT with leading industry professionals from India and abroad. On 23rd March, USMC, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, Dwarka organised a first of its kind hybrid Panel Discussion on the topic, “ChatGPT in Media and Communication Industry: Challenges and Opportunities”. Honourable Vice Chancellor Padma Shree Prof (Dr.) Mahesh Verma was the Patron and Dr Queeny Pradhan, Dean USMC graced the occasion as the Chairperson. The panel discussion was organized by Dr. Kulveen Trehan, Senior Assistant Professor, USMC, and Ms Sneh Gupta, Senior Research Fellow, USMC was the event associate.

It was a distinguished panel of renowned industry professionals with expertise in various areas related to Advertising, Public Relations, Digital Communications and AI. The esteemed panellists included Stuart Bruce (Co-Founder, PR Futurist), Aaron Kwitken (Founder and CEO, PRophet), Nitin Mantri (Group CEO, AvianWE), Dr Samir Kapur (Director, Adfactors PR Communication), Dr Subi Chaturvedi (Global SVP, Chief Corporate Affairs & Public Policy Officer, InMobi), Anita Nayyar (COO, Media Branding & Communications, Patanjali Ayurved Ltd), Nikhil Pandey, (Communication Strategist, Former Creative Director at Havas), and Rudra Prasad Kasturi (Vice President, Times Internet).

Panel Discussion on “ChatGPT in Media and Communication Industry: Challenges and Opportunities”

The panel was curated to provide a platform for media and communication professionals to connect, share knowledge, and explore new opportunities. It was an excellent opportunity for students to learn from industry leaders, gain new insights into the latest trends and developments in the media and communication industry and network with like-minded individuals.

ChatGPT is a leading provider of artificial intelligence-based language solutions that empower businesses and individuals to communicate effectively in the global marketplace. With its advanced natural language processing capabilities, ChatGPT enables individuals and organizations to streamline their communication processes and improve their engagement.

Dr Kulveen Trehan, moderator of the session initiated the discussion with questions revolving around the potential disruptions that ChatGPT can create in media and communication industry. With varied perspectives across the board, the idea that more than the technology it is the accessibility of AI that is creating disruption. Stuart Bruce. (Co-Founder, PR Futurist), emphasized the omnipresence of AI and ML across our lifecycle with Alexa and Siri being the current favourite. Global think tanks and research need to give adequate attention to map this disruption. Aaron Kwittken (Founder and CEO, PRophet) gave us a walkthrough of global industry practices and development of new GPT 4 tools like Taylor. Our esteemed panel also had Mr Samir Kapur, Mr.Nitin Mantri, Ms Anita Nayyar and Mr. Nikhil Pandey covering the impact of Generative AI on various verticals like corporate affairs, corporate communications, brand building and creativity in advertising

Panel Discussion on “ChatGPT in Media and Communication Industry: Challenges and Opportunities”

The end of the moderated discussion was followed by a healthy and engaging question-answer round from the audience. Some of the important discussion threads remained around impact on Unique Authentic Brand Voice, Digital Marketing and SEO, Reservations for adoption of AI by communication practitioners, Creativity in advertising, new job opportunities like Communication Engineers and most importantly on ethical considerations around AI. An important remark on one of the leading questions about the techno-cultural shift in communication by Dr Samir Kapur was "Written by Human" will become more valuable as human intelligence will take precedence in future. Dr Kulveen Trehan concluded the event with her final remarks, followed by a vote of thanks to the panellists, the audience, and the entire event.

In conclusion, the Panel Discussion on “ChatGPT in Media and Communication Industry: Challenges and Opportunities” was an enriching and informative event that provided insights into the vast potential of ChatGPT in the media and communication industry. The participation of renowned industry professionals and their valuable input made the event a great success. The University School of Mass Communication, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, Dwarka, is committed to organizing such events like in the future to keep its students updated with the latest trends and advancements in the industry.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

University School of Mass Communication, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University has successfully concluded a two-day national seminar on National Education Policy (NEP) titled Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP 2020 and paradigm shift in Indian education, sponsored by Indian Council of Social Science Research, Ministry of Education, Government of India. With focus on the National Education Policy, 2020, this conference aimed at discussing its effectiveness along with its various dimensions.

The main aim of the conference was to explore the effectiveness and various dimensions of the National Education Policy – 2020. The Policy has created a large canvas with futuristic vision. Explore the role NEP in contributing towards nation building. The new National Education Policy- 2020 (NEP) has a clear vision to re-establish India in the desirable position of world leader at global level. It provides an opportunity to the higher Educational Institutions especially those engaged in art, culture, language and technical education to create a system that contributes directly to transforming the country into a global knowledge superpower (Vishwa Guru).

It aims for an inclusive and equitable Education System and at Higher education level introduces broad-based, multi-disciplinary, holistic education with flexible curricula, creative combinations of subjects, integration of vocational education and multiple entries and exit points with appropriate certification. Thus, the prime objective of organizing this conference is to provide a common platform to all the students, researchers and faculty members to discuss and deliberate over the concern of National Education Policy 2020 and promoting the same.

Sub-Themes

1. Re-establishing India as a Vishwaguru
2. Inculcating Freedom struggle and forgotten heroes in the curriculum framework
3. Women empowerment through National Education Policy, 2020
4. Addressing concerns of Tribals and remote areas through the vision of National Education Policy, 2020
5. Opportunities and Challenges- National Education Policy, 2020 and Higher Education Institutions
6. Infusing the idea of 'Vasudeva Kutumbhkam' through National Education Policy, 2020

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

The Seminar day began with the lighting of lamp and felicitation of our esteemed guests. After a welcome address by our conference head, Dr Queeny Pradhan, Dean USMC, the conference began formally with an address by our Chief Guest, Dr Sunil Mehru, joint director of CEC.

Dr Mehroo, summarised the key aims of NEP, highlighting that the policy lays greater emphasis to creating a digital environment in the field of education. It proclaims to promote adoption and integration of technology in pedagogy. The policy treats humans as humans and not as resources. He highlights that NEP aims to be disruptive for the better against the traditional forms of pedagogy. He adds focus to the adoption of disruptive educational technologies which forces institutions to rethink their processes or adopt learning modules to compete with international institutions. He also highlighted other tech focused goals of NEP which includes access to open access software's, technology-based institution accreditation system, use of big tech in language translation, setting of academic bank of credit, digital storage for certificates and so on.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Professor Manukonda Rabindranath, our guest of honour, talked about the mission of NEP and why it has been the talk of the town. He begins his address by saying that it had been 33 years since the implementation of the last education policy and it was in dire need for change. Education is the backbone of any country and it is essential to keep up to date with the new trends in the global education scenario. The NEP was formed after receiving feedback from more than 2 lakh people which includes teachers, parents, students, and other stakeholders in education. He concludes by saying that NEP makes it a mission to increase the Gross Enrolment Ratio which is abysmally low in India.

Dr Sunil Mehru, joint director of CEC summarised the key aims of NEP, highlighting that the policy lays greater emphasis to creating a digital environment in the field of education.

The goals and aims of NEP were further laid out by Prof AK Saini, Member secy of IIQAC who adds that NEP focuses on quality education and that achieving said quality is not a one- person job but will require a collective effort by governments, institutions, teachers, students, and parents. In terms of fulfilling the goals of NEP, GGSIPU has taken the right steps by introducing MOOCs, multiple entry and exit in certain programs, outcome-based courses and by giving students the freedom to choose their own courses as well.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Professor Varun Joshi, Coordinator of NSS (National Service Scheme), highlighted the importance of NSS both inside and outside the university, in the larger context of NEP. The NEP aim holistic and multidisciplinary learning has already been implemented by the university. With the motto of “Swayam se pehle aap”, the university has reached out to the wider community by bettering their lives. As of now, the university has reached out to 25 villages of Delhi through the Unnat Bharat scheme, spreading education to the community on health, inclusiveness, increased community involvement, legal and financial aid and conducting career guidance session for local students.

The end of this session was marked by a vote of thanks by Dr Sachin Bharati, co-coordinator of the seminar, USMC.

The plenary session was kicked off by a wonderful and interesting speech by professor Uma Shankar Pandey. He began by asking attendees to log onto mentimeter a software that enables users to share knowledge and real-time feedback with presentations, polls or brainstorming sessions in classes, meetings, gatherings, conferences and other group activities. The question that was asked was : how can classes be made more interesting?. Engaging, Practical and Interactive were the words that came out of the word cloud. In order to achieve that he said that there should be a relevancy of communication. There are times where even if the message is relevant, it is not necessary that it would be decoded by the receiver or students in the way intended by the teacher. He concluded by adding that policymakers, teachers, parents have to factor in the post covid realities of our society and try to be more empathetic in our approach towards learning and imparting knowledge.

Dr. Umashankar Pandey, Associate Professor and Head, Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, Surendranath College for Women, Kolkata addressing a session.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Professor Awa Shukla, focused on the cultural aspects of the NEP and how it is a step in the right direction to promote our language and heritage. It is our duty to promote our culture, highlight our achievements get out of the colonial hangover. Same was echoed by Dr. Kiran Jha who said that NEP has recognized the glorious past of ancient India in terms of the contribution of our world-class Indian Universities like Nalanda and Takshshila. These institutions set the highest standards of multidisciplinary teaching and research and hosted scholars and students from across varying backgrounds and countries. In NEP, all curriculum and pedagogy, from the foundational stage onwards, will be redesigned to be strongly rooted in the Indian and local context and ethos in terms of culture, traditions, heritage, customs, language, philosophy, geography, ancient and contemporary knowledge, societal and scientific needs, indigenous and traditional ways of learning etc. – in order to ensure that education is maximally relatable, relevant, interesting, and effective for our students.

The more critical aspects of NEP were highlighted by Professor Mausumi Bhattacharya of Vishwa Bharati University with a focus on Gender inequality in education and neglect of marginalised communities like LGBTQIA. She said the goal of NEP should be to increase Gross Enrollment Ratio of women and transgender communities, working out ways to improve their dropout rates, training more women teachers, creating a safe space for girls, imparting essential knowledge on female hygiene, investing in adequate infrastructure like enough toilets and schools and college in their vicinity, mode of transport etc. Finally, the successful execution of key initiatives of NEP requires availability of adequate financial resources for decades. In this regard, the NEP has stated that to realise the goals of the new policy, the country has to raise public spending on education to 6 percent of GDP. This is a daunting task if one considers the past promises and their actual realisation.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Dr Shikha Rai, Associate professor at IGNOU said that, since it is an one of its kind Open University, IGNOU is way ahead in implementing the NEP. That IGNOU primary goal has been to expand the reach of the University to achieve the targeted GER and include the unserved target groups including the SEDGs into the fold of higher education, Strengthening the University's international presence, Rethinking the processes of designing, developing and delivering an enhanced learning experience through technology-enabled teaching-learning methods. In line with NEP, the institution has regrouped disciplines, introduced multidisciplinary courses, integrated programs from different courses, has already trained 15 lakh teachers from a target of 50 lakh and so on. Post covid, the stigma around distance education is no longer relevant and that now more than ever, IGNOU's contribution to learning is being recognised and appreciated.

The technical session chaired of the conference was chaired by Dr Manash P Goswami, DR Santwan Chatterjee and Co Chaired by Dr. Akhilesh Upadhyay. Papers were presented by a participants that included assistant professor Sarita Yadav and Ankita Sharma from MERI college, New Delhi; Dheeraj Singh, research scholar doon university, Shelly Gupta and Himanshu, research scholars from USMS; Sanchita Dutta, JRF qualified independent researcher; Sumant Sharma, Assistant professor, USAP; Apratim Bhattacharya and Lokesh Sharma, research scholars of Visva Bharati University.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Apratim's study on developing culture inclusion in NEP 2020 and integration of interdisciplinary education highlighted the need of education rooted in Indian culture, but with enough flexibility that allows for a critical discourse. He claims that the Visva Bharati approach to education is most suited to realise the goals of NEP that asks for a culturally inclusive education. Lokesh Chakma's research on the rise of OTT and its impact on education ends on cautionary note about ed tech platforms. Their apparent benefits have to be weighed with capitalist greed on which these platforms have thrived.

The end of the session was marked with summary remarks by Dr Santwan Chattopadhyaya who stressed on the importance of transdisciplinary approach towards generation of new knowledge. That the high ideals of NEP must be measured with actual ground impact, that teacher skill enhancement is as essential as filling existing posts and that state aided institutions has to be brought on par with central aided institutions.

Dr Manash P Goswami and Dr Akhilesh Upadhyay critically analysed the papers presented and gave helpful suggestions to the presenters on how to improve their papers so that can be published in a reputed journal.

Day 2 began with formal inauguration by Dr Durgesh Tripathi who felicitated our esteemed guests and in his address laid emphasis on strengthening our mother language and the need of enhancing and integrating technology in pedagogy, which are primary goals of NEP. This was followed by a plenary session by Prof. Ajay Rathore and Prof. Rachna Chaturvedi, Prof. Devita Patil, Prof. Manisha Sharma and Dr Manash P Goswami.

The session was started with a presentation given by Prof. Ajay Rathore who started by showing a video that explained how it was Indian who first taught the world how to organise time, date, week etc. India is in 4th position when it comes to contribution in research output but our citations remain low. Like individuals' nations also need to have a national aspiration or ambition. India has the capacity to offer something to the global community when they require critically. We have always respected mother nature and already incorporate the ideals of sustainable development. But he adds that India must develop a scientific temper, reject superstition, battle misinformation. Traditional wisdom should be filtered for misinformation and superstition and apply it in modern context. We must apply scientific probability, reasoning and objectivity and question and challenge misconceptions of seniors. We also have to improve assessment techniques, engage in outcome-based curriculum and increase the knowledge base of students so that they can generate new ideas, products and news ways of thinking and that is how we can truly become a Vishwa guru.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Professor Manash P Goswami talked about how NEP was started in 2020, in a pandemic year and truly tough time but the government went ahead and implemented it. He says that in implementing Nep, digital tech is going to be huge boon. Lack of knowledge and resources is also a barrier in implementing NEP. India has developed a great infrastructure for connectivity. People are now using phones to watch films, videos and other content all because of digital infrastructure. Technology will also break the barriers of caste, class and other social barriers. He is hopeful that even the remotest areas will gain access to information thanks to internet. Digital universities will come up and will change the whole education scenario. Many people will now get the opportunity to enrol in courses which were otherwise out of their reach. But he also cautions that if digital technology is not rolled out across the country it can further digital divide and result in digital depression. Also, digital technologies come with other challenges like fake news, clickbait, misinformation but the positive of the such technology outweigh the negatives.

Prof Daivita Patil, asked students about amarkantak, and as expected students had no idea about the place. She says that amarkantak is a beautiful place but is not recognised whereas Sydney which is thousands of miles away is famous. So why NEP was needed: to bring back out students to know about our culture, our heritage. The people in remote areas are the true upholders of our culture and heritage. Macaulay thought rote learning but we forgot our traditional skills and were unable to acquire skills and thus remained unemployed. To make our country a vishwaguru, our students need to change their mindsets and then only they can be the future of this country. We also need to bridge the urban rural gap and along with focus on technology, we need to bring our most underprivileged people along. She concludes by saying that education is not about earning crores but about handling the challenges of life and leading happier life.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Prof Rachna gave her presentation titled AISECT-A practical approach to NEP which deals with how to apply NEP, what is exactly happening and what to do?. She talks about how AISECT will help marginalised communities to get better access to education. AISECT provides skills to people required in the unorganised sector and to remain sustainable without needing any outside help. AISECT focuses on how people can earn money which is the basic question for everyone. Focusing on basic skill based training like typing, word processing etc has helped people a lot. She gives the example of Benaras where AISECT trained a few girls basic autocad and thereafter they could design sarees which earlier used to take months. She gives valuable insights on the importance of regional languages in education. By just keeping the conversation in regional language, students can learn more efficiently in rural areas. They are also hiring local people to impart knowledge. This according to her, are the ways through which NEP can be employed practically.

Prof. Devita Patil referenced Dmitry Zealado's book on rituals and how rituals are required to purge out our emotions. There is a thin line between rituals and superstition. She also talked about bringing women to the job market. She touches on the systematic oppression of patriarchy and other pressing issues. There should be a transdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approach in resolving issues in our education system. Systemic design changes in language use and language approach will certainly help in resolving our existing problems. She cites example of Sweden where both male and female are referred to as Han. This according to her are more bottoms up approach which along with top down approach are also needed. So along with policy changes, societal changes are also needed. She highlighted many issues that woman face: an example of which is that even though enrolment of women in media colleges is high, their presence is very low because of systemic issues in the media field. She adds that implementing NEP alone is not enough, and that auditing its achievements both qualitatively and quantitatively is of utmost importance and so is language decolonisation. She concludes by saying that process is more important than the product itself.

Seminar on- Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav: NEP, 2020 and Paradigm Shift in Indian Education

Post lunch, technical session began which was chaired by Sanjay Kumar, Prof Sayan Chatterjee and Co chaired by Dr Preeti Singh and Prof Umesh Pathak. A total of 7 papers were presented: Dr Upasana Khurana, Dr Sheel Nidhi Tripathy, Dr Rakhee, Miss Bhavyanshi Goel, Namrita Jain, Aman Dubey and Dr Sheela Narang.

Dr Sheel Nidhi Tripathy talked about Vasudhev Kutumbakam through NEP, 2020. This concept originates from vedic scripture Maha Upanishad and it translates For those who have a big heart the entire world constitutes the family. The principles of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam aligns well with the goal of NEP2020 and promotes intercultural education, respect for diversity: linguistic, geographic, cultural and so on.

Dr Rakhee presented her paper titled investigating the importance of NEP 2020 projecting digitalisation in higher education institutions. Many higher education institutions have utilised technology to provide students with flexible learning options during class instruction. From a student's point of view Digitalisation enhances their education and increases cognitive retention and from a teachers perspective it helps enhance their teaching and increases their productive. She also explained dual digitalisation which comprises of digitalisation of education and the subjects. She finally concludes that NEP aims to achieve triad digitalisation i.e. making a shared digital space for students and teachers.

One Day National Conference- Susceptibility of Indian Women: Building Equity through Innovation for a Sustainable Tomorrow

The University School of Law and Legal Studies (USLLS) of the prestigious Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University (GGSIPU) organized a one day national conference to commemorate the occasion of International Women's Day. The theme of the conference was "Susceptibility of Indian Women: Building equity through innovation for a sustainable tomorrow".

Activity:

The convenor for the event was Prof. Shivani Goswami, while the Dr. Neelu Mehra acted as the co-convenor. The event was graced with the auspicious presence of Ms. Firdos Khan, statutory member at the Delhi Commission for Women, who was the Guest of Honour while Ms. Madhu Krishna Garg, retired IAS Officer and the Chairperson of Child Welfare Committee, Delhi Government was the Chief Guest.

Prof. Queeny Pradhan, Dean, USLLS started by saying that the conference has been organized to commemorate International Women's Day. She mentioned that Sustainable Development Goals 4, 5 & 6 which talk about quality education, gender equality and clean water & sanitation respectively are linked intrinsically to the theme.

Prof. Shivani Goswami, the convenor of the conference, began by mentioning the theme and emphasized on the word 'susceptible' whereby she stated that this means that the position of women in the society presently is not as clear as it used to be in the Vedic times where the women held prestigious positions. She conveyed how 'He' had taken over and mentioned the Indian laws concerning adoptions, maintenance & guardianship and succession were still in many ways, discriminatory towards women.

Ms. Firdos, the Guest of Honour, started by thanking the august gathering. She posed a couple of questions to the audience regarding mothers working and acknowledging their efforts. She talked about the inequalities persisting in the society and how the efforts put in by women need to be adequately valued. She further narrated certain personal incidents and ordeals highlighting the change in attitude of parents while dealing with sons and daughters respectively.

The Chief Guest, Ms. Madhu Krishna Garg, based her address on the following four terms 'susceptibility', 'equity', 'innovation' & 'sustainability' which constituted the theme of the conference. She narrated a few incidents and stories by the medium of which she established the difference between equity and equality. She specified how empowerment of women takes place through their own peril and not through someone else. She very categorically established the close linkage between technology and equity and how by the medium of technology and the child helpline number 1098, she had made a change in the society.

Event Organised by Trinity Institute of Professional Studies

The NSS cell of Trinity Institute of Professional Studies, affiliated to Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, New Delhi successfully posted an awareness video on its social media accounts in honour of Cyber Jagrukta Diwas, which falls on the first Wednesday of every month.

"FOR EVERY LOCK, THERE IS SOMEONE OUT THERE TRYING TO PICK IT OR BREAK IN."

Learning Outcome: NSS Cell of Trinity Institute of Professional Studies, GGSIP University initiates to spread some awareness to be cyber secure.

Some easy steps can be: ›

Turn on Multifactor Authentication

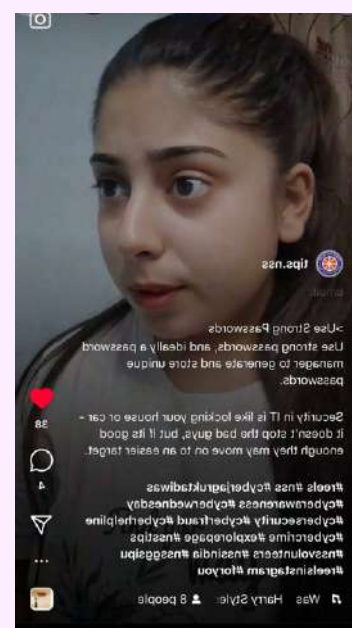

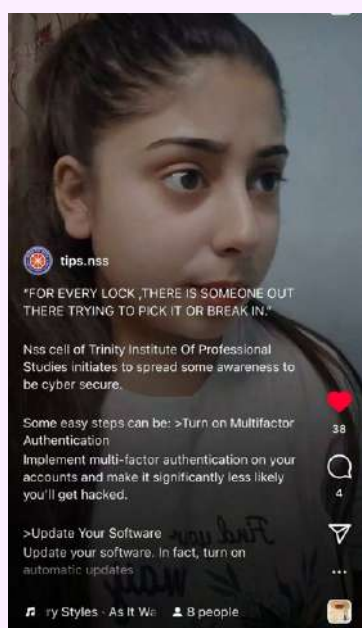

Implement multi-factor authentication on your accounts and make it significantly less likely you'll get hacked.

Update your software. In fact, turn on automatic updates

Think before you click. More than 90% of successful cyber-attacks start with a phishing email.

Use strong passwords, and ideally a password manager to generate and store unique passwords.

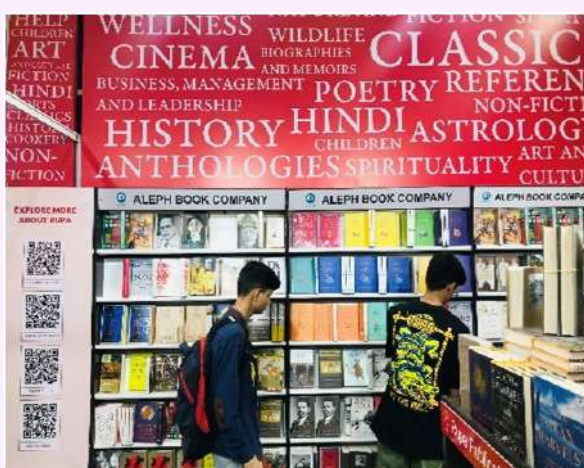

Security in IT is like locking your house or car it doesn't stop the bad guys, but if its good enough they may move on to an easier target.

“Good food is the foundation of genuine happiness.”

– Auguste Escoffier

It has been rightly said that Food has always been one's source of happiness. So, to share these happy moments our college organised a G20 themed food festival where the theme was to cook any dish of G20 nations without the use of fire. Students from each department enthusiastically participated in this event where the majority participation came from B.Ed department Students made a group of 2 or 3 and arranged the items accordingly. The effort is to prepare the cuisine authentically. It is very difficult to please people of varying tastes through food. Procuring the correct ingredients required is not an easy task but each group outshined themselves with the unexpected fusions. The cuisines ranged from Bruschetta, Swiss Sandwich, Dahi Vada, Mexican Salsa, Bhelpuri, Taco Chaat, Avocado Raita, Dabeli, Bread Canapés to Tiramisu, Chocolate Truffle, Kala Khatta Mojito. There were endless varieties to try on.

The students used innovative ideas to create the ambience and atmosphere of the place. The air was filled with the fragrance of the delicious food. The cuisines differed from one another on the basis of uniqueness, innovation, taste and presentation. All the guests relished the food and appreciated the efforts and hard work of the students. The event was a great success in terms of wide variety of food items and creative decoration. This helped the students to learn teamwork, collaboration, and creativity. Every group did well and the students worked hard for the food fest. The students maintained hygiene and cleanliness of their surroundings and material. The food festival was really a good opportunity for those who love both cooking and eating. It was a huge success, at the end of which both students and guests were happy and satisfied.

Seminar: 'Goal Settings and Strategies for being an Achiever'

To celebrate G-20 presidency of India, KCC Institute of Legal and Higher Education (KCCILHE) organized a seminar on 16 March 2023 on 'Goal Settings and Strategies for being an Achiever' with an objective to inculcate in the students, some of the time-tested qualities and habits required for success and motivate them to achieve higher goals in life.

Eminent speaker for the day was Prof. (Dr.) Dharmendra S. Sengar, faculty IIM Nagpur. He has previously been associated with the IIM Lucknow and has also been the Vice Chancellor of the Indian Law University, New Delhi. The event was started by Prof.(Dr.)Bhavna Agarwal, Director KCCILHE with a formal welcome speech and introduction of our distinguished speaker. In order to motivate the students, Prof. Sengar first gave his own example of how he came out of a lower middle class family and achieved success and top positions on the strength of willpower and dedication. Prof. Sengar shared several guidelines and encouraged students. Students got many keys to success, out of the valuable speech: Commitment, will power, discipline and passion are decisive factors in achieving one's goal in life. Work on your dream, don't dream only. Change your habits; it will change your life. They also got a bunch of good habits: Rise early, Make a plan, Exercise and Sleep properly. If we don't get a motivator in life, you should follow the footsteps of achievers. Learning is a lifelong process. Commitment is a work, not a word. Be aware of your qualities and capabilities. Keep and work with your passion to go higher in life.

Event Organised by Guru Nanak Institute of Management

Guru Nanak Institute of Management lately organized two day 'Hackathon' on 23rd & 24th March 2023. It was conducted to encourage young minds to engage in collaborative computer programming. Our honorable director Prof. (Dr.) Maninder Kaur initiated the event with great motivation and support to Students. The students were supposed to present their business ideas through application development or as an entrepreneur. There were 17 teams, each consisting of 2-3 students. The kind of zeal and enthusiasm that students displayed through their participation was incredible. Students presented their start-up ideas, involving techniques like cloud computing, IoT, machine learning, etc. The event rightfully brought out creativity and innovation from within the students. It gave them a different perspective toward some completely new ideas. It was an awe-inspiring learning experience that boosted the environment of innovation and open-mindedness. Through their presentations, the students showed clearly how bright and tech-driven our future is going to be when we have such brilliant and eager-to-learn young minds. These kinds of hands-on learning curriculums should be encouraged more in the future, as it gives us the opportunity to learn from our peers, listen to varying opinions, and co-exist with different mindsets. It was very helpful in giving us a glance at the real world out there with all the competition and opportunities it has to offer. Lots of queries from students & faculties showed their active participation & interest to know about their knowledge and awareness. The session was very informative and interactive. The participation and response that the event got were overwhelming and we really look forward to more such events.

Event Organised by Guru Nanak Institute of Management

The G-20 presidency is a massive moment for India. Educational Institutions have been entrusted with the job to launch awareness in society. The India G-20 Presidency theme is "Vasudhaiva Kutumbkam".

Considering the above Guru Nanak Institute of Management organized Flower Show (Pushp Darshan) on 16th March 2023.

"Flowers are a proud assertion that a ray of beauty outvalues all the utilities in the world."

GNIM understands the value of the lifestyle required to handle environmental issues, So we organized a Flower Show activity that sensitizes students about the benefit of nature conservation through a healthy lifestyle.

Through this activity, they got to understand that It's their collective responsibility as humans to safeguard the environment from unnatural activities and cultivate habits that bring a positive change in the environment. Our Respected Director Mam addressed the students and explain how plants and flower help release anxiety and tension, and global researchers agree that stress relief benefits from plants and flowers. When we are in a bright environment with a soothing atmosphere, our brains release happy (feel-good) hormones.

Event Organised by Guru Nanak Institute of Management

Guru Nanak Institute of Management, Punjabi Bagh organized seminar on 20/03/2023 on the theme INTERNATIONAL DAY OF HAPPINESS. G 20 is formed for addressing global issues like peace and happiness are equally crucial for all countries to co-exist. Happiness leads to good health which is a very important aspect to be addressed in today's lifestyle where Depression and other mental disorders are taking over the health aspect. Peace and Happiness, these two words are so simple, yet in this world we live in today, it is so hard to attain. No one knows where peace and happiness can be found, simply because they keep on looking for them so hard in different places, little did they know it can actually only be found within them, but once they find out where it is, their next problem would be how to get it, and that is the most difficult part. Students were highly enthusiastic to participate in this activity. Students participated in the event enthusiastically. Some sang songs some students expressed their views on what happiness meant to them, discussed life experiences, shared instances of feeling happy being on top of the world.

Our Director mam along with other staff members initiated, appreciated and encouraged students to stay positive and live life happily to be successful in all endeavors.

National Integration Camp : Chhattisgarh-2023

The National Integration Camp organized by Guru Ghasidas Vishwavidyalaya, Bilaspur, was an eventful and enriching experience for the participants. The camp aimed to promote integration among students from different parts of the country and instill values of teamwork, responsibility, and community. The camp was scheduled to start on the 18th of March 2023 and end on the 24th of March 2023.

The combined schedule of first 3 days is as follows:-

Day 1 of the camp was filled with adventure and fun. The students arrived at the campsite on the 17th of March 2023, and after a hearty breakfast, the students were called for registration. The registration process was smooth, and the volunteers made sure that all the teams were registered without any hassle.

After the registration process was over, the students were given several instructions on the rules and regulations of the camp. The volunteers were allotted different rooms so that they could amalgamate with the volunteers of different states. This step was taken to promote integration among the volunteers from different parts of the country. The day ended with performances in the evening, which were filled with cultural diversity.

Special Camp

NSS works mainly on the principle of NOT ME BUT YOU and the NSS Cell of Trinity Institute of Professional Studies has been trying to follow and nurture the same ideology.

The activities carried out in Seven Day/Night Special NSS Camp-2023 have served as an eye opener for the young NSS volunteers about the contemporary problems that our country is facing.

With deep sense of gratification, we take pride in the successful completion of the camp by the NSS volunteers of the College.

The principles on which NSS as an organization is built, has inherent characters in line with the cause of nation building through service. The activities done by the NSS volunteers during the camp helped them to equip themselves with an insight, sensitivity and close understanding of the problems that are faced at the grass root level. With the field experiences, our volunteers have learnt how to lead a life of dignity with positive mind set and contribute to the growth of Nation by one or the other way. The enthusiasm which our volunteers put their heart into the NSS initiatives, this learning experience is bound to become a movement in itself in the times to come.

WATER CONSERVATION STUDENT MARCH - SAVE WATER

Water conservation is the practice of using water efficiently to reduce unnecessary water usage and avoid its wastage. Water conservation is a broad category that covers simple ways to save water at home to complex, long term measures taken to preserve water on a larger scale. 70% of the earth's surface is covered with water, though it is not entirely useful to humans.

To spread awareness about Water Conservation our college Gitarattan Institute of Advanced Studies and Training organised a campaign on 10th march 2023 in which all the pupil teachers made banners and took out a rally by holding the posters. The rally was done in the whole college & nearby street with shouting the slogans to make everyone aware about water conservation.

Extension lecture on Action Research

“NO RESEARCH WITHOUT ACTION, NO ACTION WITHOUT RESEARCH”

- KURT LEWIN

An Extension lecture on SOLVING SCHOOL PROBLEMS THROUGH ACTION RESEARCH was held on Tuesday, March 21, 2023, at the Gitarattan Institute of Advanced Studies and Training and the speaker was Dr. S.K. Bhatia (former Associate professor, CIE, University of Delhi). He has stood as the institution's anchor and is a foundation of academic success in all spheres.

Dr. S.K. Bhatia sir started his lecture by sharing his own personal experience of Army Public School, Subroto Park. He followed inductive approach to make all understand the concept of Action Research in 1960. He then mentioned how this extension lecture on action research will be beneficial for all the student teachers and covers most of the crucial details related to the topic.

After the brief introduction, Dr. S.K. Bhatia talked about prof. Stefen M. Corey who give the concept of action research. Then sir told us that action research simply means solving a local problem in a local setting. It is necessary for educational practioners to do action research for improving the learning process.

We further discussed about processes involved in the action research including designing, collecting data, analysis of problem involved and the outcome and corrective strategies for solving problems. Afterwards sir discussed about purpose of action research. Sir told us that action research is beneficial for us while writing teachers diary in future and setting instructional and learning objectives. After discussing all the aspects of action research, sir concluded the lecture by giving various examples in which action research can be done. It includes problems like truancy in class, remedying an inattentive student, improving students' handwriting and many more. All the B.Ed trainees and faculty attended the lecture and it was a very illuminating session with Bhatia sir, as usual we are happy to have him because his expertise and direction are always very valuable to us.

TRIVIA

The G20 Presidency steers the G20 agenda for one year and hosts the Summit. The G20 consists of two parallel tracks: the Finance Track and the Sherpa Track.

The G20 process from the Sherpa side is coordinated by the Sherpas of member countries, who are personal emissaries of the Leaders. Finance Track is led by Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors of the member countries.

The Finance Track is mainly led by the Ministry of Finance. These working groups meet regularly throughout the term of each Presidency.

There are Engagement Groups which bring together civil societies, parliamentarians, think tanks, women, youth, labour, businesses and researchers of the G20 countries.

The Group does not have a permanent secretariat. The Presidency is supported by the Troika - previous, current and incoming Presidency. During India's Presidency, the troika will comprise Indonesia, India and Brazil, respectively.
