

1. Adnan Raman was a successful story. An ambitious, but reserved, person at heart Adnan never left an opportunity to learn and to improve his skill sets. As his properly business expanded Adnan felt the need to have a person skilled at public relations and communications.
2. He roped in his long time friend Arnab Dhanoa, a small time businessman, as a partner to help him in his ventures. Seeking to consolidate his financial position and looking at Adnan's business acumen Arnab jumped at the chance to join Adnan. An affable person, fond of outdoor activities, especially shooting, Arnab was an extrovert who made friends easily and came handy to woo and sway the clients, as well as to liaise with the local authorities when needed.
3. As the business swelled, Arnab became more influential with each passing season. Building upon his partnership in RealTa Enterprises, Arnab used his affable nature to build numerous contacts and established himself in the local politics. He soon became independent of his income from RealTa Enterprises and started investing in the various other ventures in and around NCR. Arnab's lifestyle started to mirror that of Adnan's.
4. Egged on by his newly found confidantes Arnab soon started disassociating from RealTa Estates and concentrated on building his own businesses. As his businesses clashed with the interests of RealTa Enterprises the relationship between Adnan and Arnab soon became strained and eventually broke. In January 2014 Arnab left RealTa Enterprises and Adnan continued to operate RealTa Enterprises. However, despite their rival interests both Adnan and Arnab remained cordial and were seen as icons of the real estate businesses in NCR.
